2. CONTENT of test for identification of the developed communicative competence in English

What is communication? [From MOOC Introduction to Communication Science by Rutger de Graaf (University of Amsterdam)].

The most simple definition is that communication is each act of transmitting information. Information in the broadest sense of the word: including thoughts, ideas and emotions. Giving someone a bouquet of flowers is communicating a certain message. Adding to that gift a verbal compliment (you're pretty) is another separate act of communication. Blushing because you have just received flowers and a compliment is again another form of communication. As social animals we communicate day in day out with spoken words, nonverbal gestures, signs and symbols. Sometimes we use media to communicate a message. Media are the channels that we use to communicate. Scholars don't really agree on the definition of the word media. Television, Internet, Radio, Mobile Phones, the soapbox we stand on to give a speech. They are all technical media in a way. Things we constructed to amplify our communication. In the more broader definitions, we can include our hands, voice and eyes, that we all use to communicate somehow, in the list of communication channels, of media. In general however, whenever we discuss mediated communication, or THE mass media, we only mean the first category. Over the years scientists from different scientific disciplines have studied these channels for communication and all these different forms of communication. The results of their studies have formed the basis of the relatively new science of communication. Even today, many scholars in other disciplines study the exact same communication phenomena as we do. We share theories and models and often use the same methods to analyze and describe our field. It is therefore useful to be aware of how these other disciplines are connected with ours. To get an idea of the different levels of communication and how they are connected to other scientific disciplines, we can look at the so-called pyramid of communication. On the highest level of this pyramid we find societal communication, which is by its very nature aimed at a large mass audience. Therefore mainly historians, political scientists and sociologists studied this perspective. Under that is the level of institutional communication that is performed by political parties, organized religions, large corporations and such. Then comes the level of group communication. Groups are audiences that feel a high level of group identification, for instance a family or a fan club. Both institutional and group communication are in the field sociologists and cultural anthropologists. We have now arrived to the level of interpersonal communication, basically the communication between two or more people. Both sociologists and psychologists investigate this level. Finally there is the level of intrapersonal communication. This would be the communication you have with yourself. With this we mean all information processing, thinking, internalizing information and the process of giving meaning to the world around us. Of course this approach leans heavily on the discipline of psychology.

Questions:

1. According the text common definition of communication is ... information.
2. What example does author give to show difference between communication acts?.
3. What level of "pyramid of communications" goes beyond communication in a family or a fan club? It is ... communication.
4. In what order are the levels of the "pyramid of communications"?
5. In intrapersonal communication person communicates with

Read the article about a man who opened a restaurant, and choose the best variant in each gap.

OPENING A RESTAURANT

Twelve months ago Robin Parker left his job at an insurance company. He now runs a restaurant which is doing very well since it opened four months ago.

Opening a restaurant was a big change for Robin. He loves travelling and all his favourite television programmes are about cooking. One day, he read in a newspaper about a doctor who left her job and moved to Italy to start a restaurant. He thought, "I can do that!" His wife wasn't very happy about the idea, and neither was his father. But his brother, a bank manager, gave him lots of good ideas.

Robin lived in Oxford and had a job in London. He thought both places would be difficult to open a restaurant in, so he chose Manchester because he knew the city from his years at university. He found an empty building in a beautiful old street. It was old and needed a lot of repairs, but all the other buildings were expensive and he didn't have much money.

Robin loves his new work. It's difficult being the boss, but he has found an excellent chef. He says he enjoys talking to customers and some of them have become his good friends. He gets up at 6pm and often goes to bed after midnight. It's a long day but he only starts to feel really tired when he takes time off at the weekends.

Robin's restaurant is doing so well that he could take a long holiday. But he's busy with his new idea to open a supermarket selling food from around the world. He's already found a building near his restaurant.
